Sen. Styles Bridges, most pow-erful figure in New Hampshire politics, desecribed the Nixon write-in vote as "100½ per cent spontaneous." He also said rathshire voters to keep the two members of the Eisenhower-Nixon team.

Behind this is the fact that Bridges is determined to stop Gov. Chris Herter of Massachusetts in his ambition to be vice president. Herter is one of the original drafters of Eisenhower and is close to assistant president Sherman Adams, ex-governor of New Hamp-shire. There is no love lost between Adams and Bridges; so the New Hampshire primary presented an excellent chance for Bridges to put Herter in his place by encouraging a big write-in for Nixon.

The Senior unit of Wesleyan Service Guild of the First Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Alfred Johnson on Monday evening. The president, Miss Alice Mount, opened the meeting with prayer remembering mission projects and the birthday of missionaries listed in the Prayer Calendar for that day.

The worship setting displayed a rustic cross on a small mound. Barren space and rocks on the left represented the emptiness of life before one accepts Christ.
